

Rehabilitation Hospital of the Cape and Islands (RHCI) will change its name to "Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital-Cape Cod" in October, RHCI officials have announced. Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital (SRH) developed RHCI and managed the Cape's only rehabilitation hospital for its first six years. In 2001, RHCI became a sister institution as a member of the Spaulding Rehabilitation Network. The Network includes two rehabilitation hospitals, two long-term care hospitals and 23 outpatient centers in Eastern Massachusetts, all of which will be assuming the Spaulding name. It was stressed that all donations to RHCI—now or in the future—would remain earmarked for the local facility and its outpatient centers.

The Barnstable County Department of Human Services has released a new publication, Cape Cod Senior and Elder Residents in the 21st Century, an analysis of the Cape's demographics and data collected in the annual Monitoring the Human Condition study. The findings show there are 81,000 permanent year round residents of Barnstable County aged 55 or older.
